Brings a New Angle

I guess the 1980's won't change anything. We still get fed the same old "slop" in the lunchroom; smokers are still "clouding up" the restrooms, and the old "horsehair" plaster still falls from the ceilings. But besides dodging falling debris in the halls, our school is really a safe place. In case of a fire, it only takes 45 minutes to get out. During the tornado drills, no one panics because everyone is used to the falling objects and those awful screams of suffering people.

No, but seriously, our school is one of the best around. The school's faculty is excellent and has much support from the parents. In comparison to the other M.V.L. schools, Philo is one of the best disciplined. Even though there are three-hour detention halls sponsored by Mr. Carson, the student-teacher relationships are outstanding. Always striving for the better and leaving the worst behind, a new decade brings a new angle.

New Dimensions to School Life

"Wild-N-Crazy" students paralleled the deranged days at Philo High School. "Insane" times included crazy sock day, senior dress-up day, and everyday classes. How would you like to be a 206 study hall teacher?

"Who are we? Electrics! What are we? Great!"

Besides doing chants like the one above, the cheerleaders also practiced after school on different weeknights. After practice, they usually have blue nails and yellow hands from making spirit signs. Among other things, the three squads planned pep rallies, bonfires, and dances; a special thanks goes for the new banners representing all the M.V.L. schools in the gym

The varsity squad consisted of seniors — Jodi Danison (Captain), Caralee Cartwright, Ann Perkins, and Cindy Trout; juniors — Julie Fluharty and Julie Zink

Reserves included: Kim Harris (Captain), Sally Beech, Tammy Elliott, Susie Mock, and Wendy Watt

Representatives for the freshmen were: Rose Wilson (Captain), Gina Bates, Jane Fluharty, Sheryl Lindamood, and Julie Rider

Gridders Hopes “Crack the Mons- ter?”

A Friday night at Sam Hatfield Stadium displays the scene of parents, students, teachers, and players all trying to rush through the main gate together. The band plays the traditional "Fight Song" while the players warm-up on the field. To boost spirit, the cheerleaders start a series of chants, thus, another football season begins

Getting ready for their season, the players spent many exhausting hours in practice. They will never forget "two-a-days"; starting at 7:30, they spent four grueling hours, with only a short break for lunch, and would then slave for an additional three hours during the afternoon. The "Butcher Shop" was one of their more "favorite" drills. It consisted of a series of 40 yard sprints, interrupted with sit-ups or push-ups, and lots of energy! However, practice wasn't always this "fun"; sometimes the cheerleaders would treat them to watermelon or they would all go out to eat.

The senior lettermen were: Kenny Emory, Marvin Houk, Russ Wagner, Jim Brownfield, Scott Samson, Jay Paul, Todd Spring, Jim Deitrick, and Pat Bintz. The Bud Mays Award went to Jim Deitrick.

With Queen Jodi and Her Court

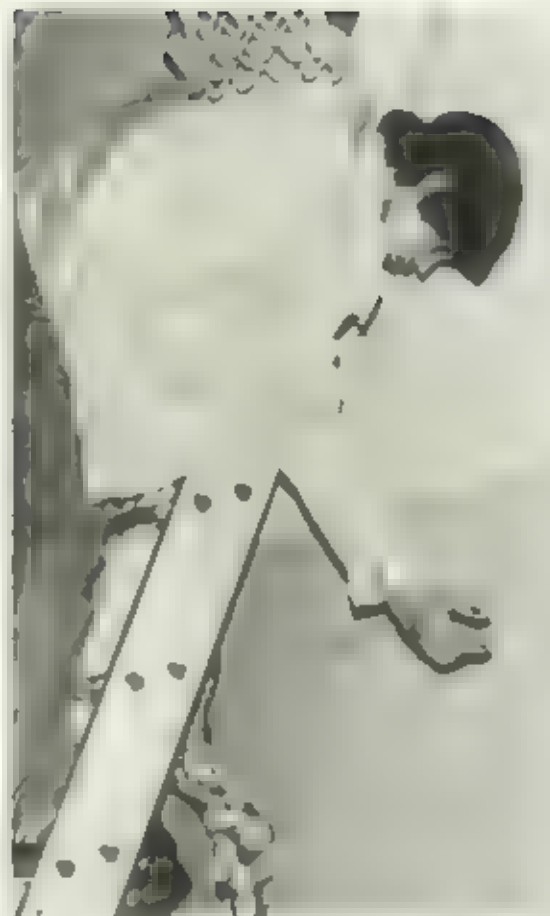

"Brr! Is it chilly and this rainy weather isn't helping any. Oh look! There's Jodi Danison the 1979-1980 Homecoming Queen."

Even with bad weather, Queen Jodi, senior attendants; Ann Perkins and Kim Evans, junior; Amber Calendine, sophomore; Wendy Watt, and freshmen; Janet Heckle looked great!

The night's events began with Mistress of Ceremonies Anita Frick announcing the court. Jodi was then crowned by the 1978-1979 queen, Jackie Gallogly. Queen Jodi gave her acceptance speech and presented Capt. Russ Wagner with the game ball. However, with the attendants and queen cheering, the team still slipped under New Lex with a final score of 14-10.

Last Forever

Through the midst of a starry night, couples entered into a "Fall Fantasy." Suddenly, they are in an environment of pumpkins and autumn leaves. Following a curved pattern, the path leads them into a scene of decorated tables placed in front of the band, ironically named, "Phantom." After "booging down" and "munching" on the food, the couples had the opportunity to pose for a picture amongst bales of hay. Half-way through the dance Mistress of Ceremonies, Anita Frick, announced the Queen, court, and their escorts; they all danced to the traditional slow song, "Stairway to Heaven."

The Field in Style!

"five, six, seven, eight!" In the blistering heat of June, July, and August, the "Golden Electrics" began their 1979-1980 season. Summer highlights included first place in the American Legion Parade at Toledo, Ohio. They also received third in the Zane Trace Commemoration Parade. For July 4 the band traveled to Upper Arlington.

Also included in the circuit of fall contest shows were: Cadiz, Columbus, Wheeling, and Newark. The Wheeling Parade brought third place. To end the marching season, the majorettes claimed first at Newark with the band taking third.

Providing outstanding entertainment during half-time, the band, flag corps, and majorettes "brightened" their show with flash pots, flames, and magic cubes giving enthusiasm to the audience.

“Right” Angles

“Come on baby, go in!!” echoed through the trees at Fuller’s Fairways as the pressure became stronger. Members stood around anxiously waiting to see if the little ball would go in for a victory. In a matter of seconds the P.H.S. golfers jumped in excitement as the team had won another match in sudden death.

Ed Yzenski was named team medalist by getting the honor 12 out of 19 matches. He had the best average for the year and was also named to the all MVL golf team with the third highest score out of fifty golfers.

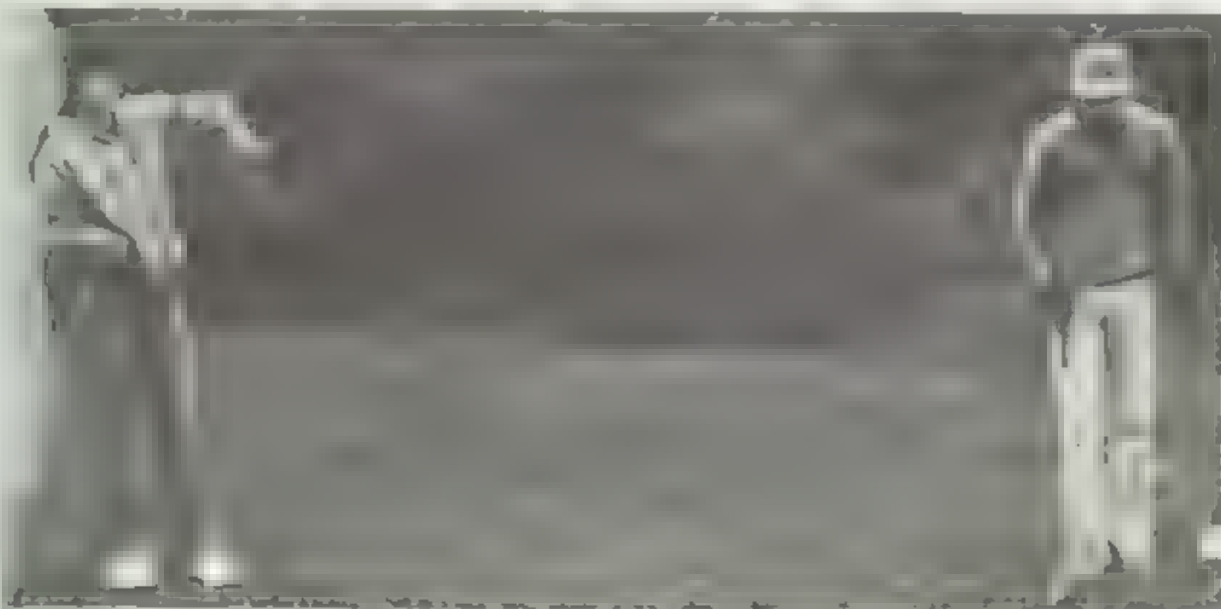

Other members were Rusty Carr, Scott Anders, Tim Galligher, Mike Kirkbride, Rick Davis, Dan Orr, Don Moyer and Tony Hutchison.

P.H.D.

"... Oh we love to practice every-day, and if you ask us why, we'll say 'cause Coach Morgan has a way with S-P-R-I-N-T-S!" Sung to the tune of a popular bologna commercial, this can be heard on the bus or during warm-ups before a volleyball game

"Grapevines! Go!" and "DIVE, DIVE, DIVE ..." were heard every non-game day from 3:00 to 5:00

The Lady 'Lectrics, although not very successful in the 1979 season, gained much needed experience. There were only 3 returning lettermen and 9 first-year members. Shortly into the season the reserve team was dropped due to uncontrollable circumstances.

Setters, Sherry Strouse and Missi Starrett participated in the all-star game at O.U.Z.

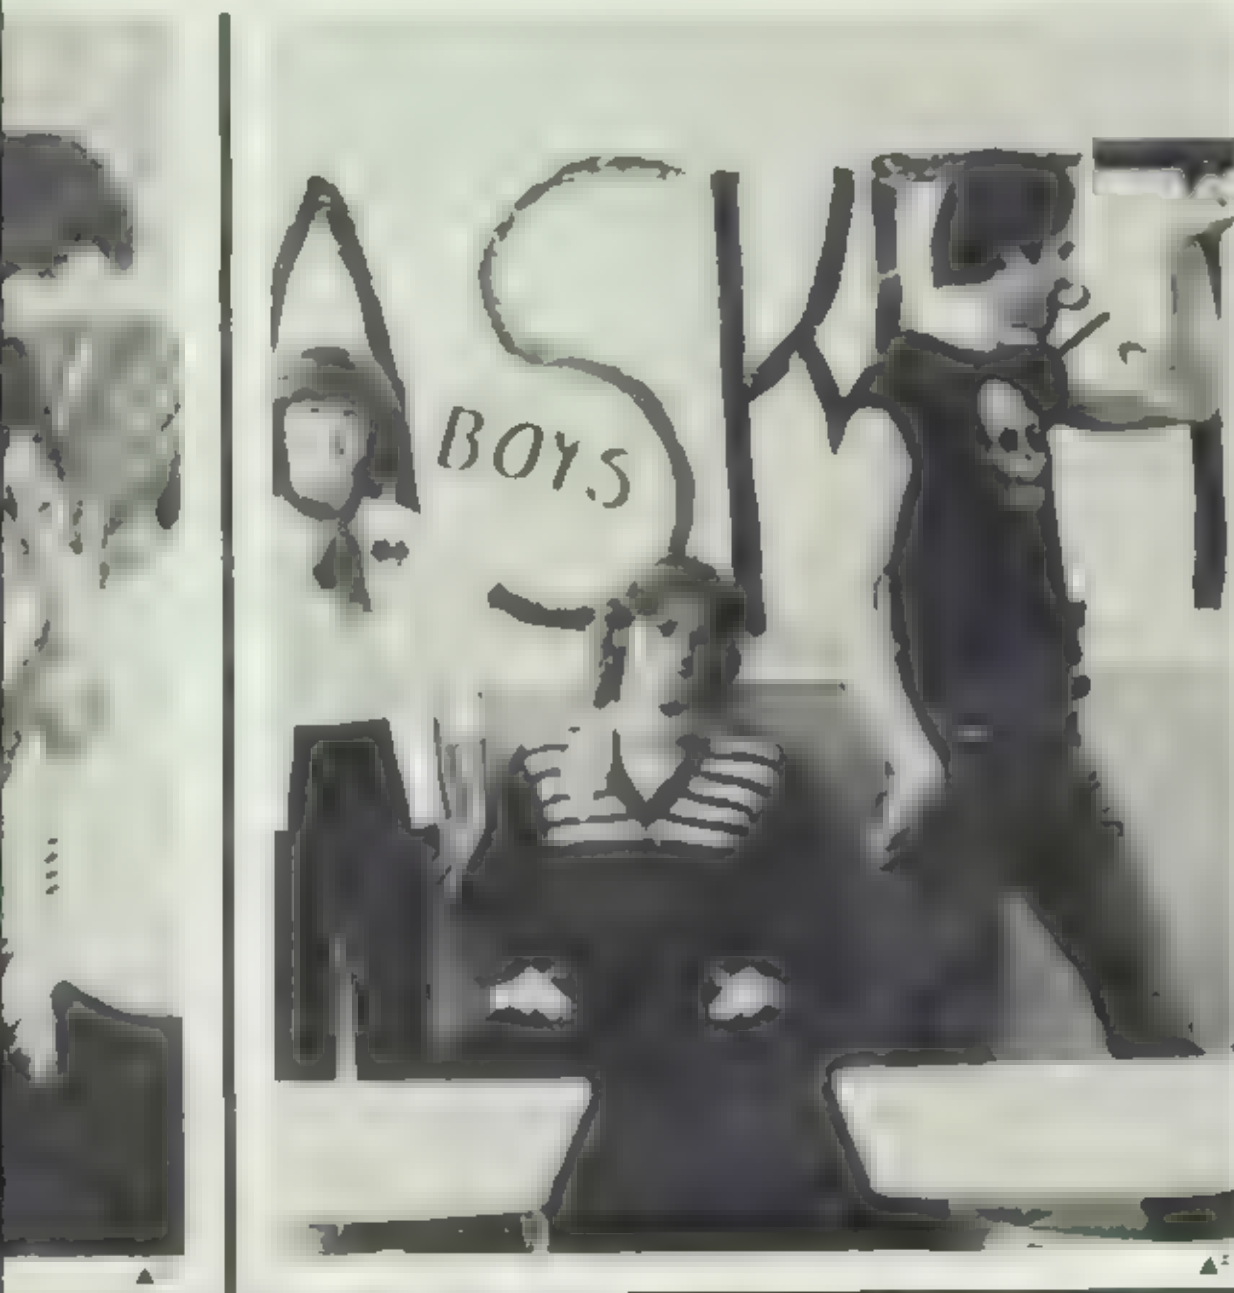

Team members were: seniors — Jayne Berkheimer, Carmela Godfrey, and Terry Kincaid; juniors — Cindy McLaughlin, Missi Starrett, and Fawn Dover; sophomores — Dianna Mitchell, Sherry Strouse, and Yvette Joseph; freshmen — Connie Whitmire, Kim Mill, and Connie Paul.

Array of Talents

A The Industrial Arts Show drew quite a crowd as many people enjoyed seeing the students' work. B Light conversation preceded the meal as Karen Ritchey looks over the table setting. C Troy Morrison displays his attitude toward running in the state competition. D Mrs. Allen offers an explanation for the preparation of one of the German dishes. E Miss Starrett and Chet Coleman "find a body" during a skit in their Shakespearean class. F Lisa Harney, Ted Pennington, and Boser (Todd Spring) show their fine taste in clothing on Fifties Day. G Among the shelves of books more fifties-clad students are found. H Tim Gallagher displays his new fingernails and Sally Fletcher, Tammy McConnell, and Donna Headley curse Dan VanHorn in a scene from MACBETH.

Shines Through- out the Year

Many activities occurred throughout the year at Philo, and unfortunately a yearbook isn't big enough to cover all of them. Here are only a few

"Guten Tag" greets Frau (Mrs.) Allen as the independent German students enter room 111 to prepare an authentic German meal for the German 1 and 2 students. Jill Mayle, Karen Ritchey and Cindi Wilson prepared such delicacies as mushroom soup, rum cake, cabbage rolls, and salt (the German version of kool-aid).

Mrs. Litchner's Shakespearean class had some "witchy" fun when they performed short scenes from MACBETH.

The Industrial Arts Club sponsored an Industrial Arts Show held in the Philo gym. Beautiful wooden desks, cabinets, bookshelves, and practical farm items like a pig shoot, were displayed. The Philo I A C received many honorable awards.

"Have you ever seen guys wearing varsity jackets with safety pins on the front and wondered what they meant? These guys are members of the Philo High School wrestling team. Each one of the safety pins represents a "pin" in a match.

Philo's wrestling team for the 1979-1980 season consisted of twenty-three members. Coach Bob Wilson, and Assistant Coach Dave Fulk. The team was made up of four freshmen, twelve sophomores, five juniors and two seniors. Returning lettermen for the year were Brook Morrison, Doug Mahon, Brad Paul, Brad Miller, and Jay Baker.

Besides competing in invitationals at Granville, Coshocton, and Sheridan, Philo held its own invitational. Tournaments were held at Morgan.

"Who invented the hole in the donut?" Advisor Janeen Lichtner asked during a practice session after school. The team worked out for about an hour every night during the week before a match, answering questions like the one above. The "Buzzing" Electrics finished their season with two wins: Crooksville and Meadowbrook, and a "questionable" loss to Maysville. Team members were Roy Clapper, Mike Beech, Adam Pyles, Roger Binion, Chet Coleman, Jamie Watson, Randy Guthrie, and Scott Franklin

ART STUDENTS DRAW RECOGNITION

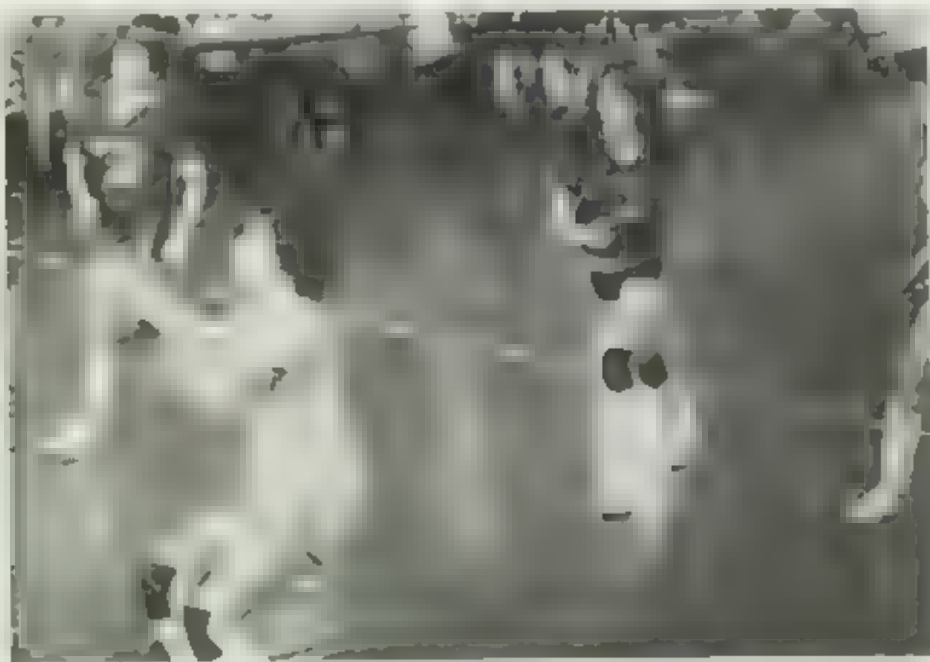

Art students worked in a variety of media from drawing, to weaving, to copper enamel. Art classes participated in the Zanesville Art Center Show. Five students' works were purchased for the Zanesville Art Center's permanent collection. Two works were selected for the regional judging for the governor's youth art show to be judged in Columbus. The students also participated in Design an Ad Contest in which five works were purchased.

Power Up

"Sprint!" "Do it again!" "Power up!" are just a few comments one hears at practice or a game from the Girls Varsity Basketball Coach, Ms. Morgan. The Lady 'Ectrics started the season losing five games in the M.V.L. action, but with a stunning victory over West Muskingum the team broke their losing streak.

Although the team lacked in height, their enthusiasm in playing showed in every game. Ms. Morgan commented, "The team is very young, enthusiastic, and very spirited. They have a more positive outlook concerning the whole team, themselves, and goals they want to set for the team."

Defense Wins

"Hello everyone this is Philo's own Howard Cosell. Tonight we are at the Philo High School gymnasium where the Green Devils are taking on the Philo Electrics . . ."

"Well, folks here we are deep into the first quarter with the Electrics leading by one. And, and what's this? Why the Philo fans are waving, yes, it's . . . they are waving blue and gold tube socks!"

This is how the 1979-1980 basketball season went. Coach Booher started a new tradition with the waving of tube socks. Also Captain Electric, Kathy Henderson, was something new. All of the fans were enthusiastic about the new ideas. The members of the fighting Electrics were Brad Hina, Rusty Carr, Jim Brownfield, Ed Yzenski, Todd Spring, Tim Gallagher, Rane Wilson, Rocky Carr, Aaron Miller, Johnny Walters, Darren Morrison, Brad Morgan, Rusty Ward, Dan Snyder, Andy Rittberger, and Scott Anders.

A First at Philo

"And now, audience, the moment you have all been waiting for" and so it went, the "First Annual Philo Faculty Follies." This assembly served several purposes. First and most important, it raised money for a scholarship to be given each year. Second, it showed how crazy and "talented?" the teachers were. Third, it let the students out of class for the afternoon!

The audience was delighted with such acts as Mrs. Witham's tapping, Mr. Bell's poem, Mrs. Richardson's dancing, the Quackers' "singing?", the Great Arm Wrestling Championship, Mr. Buckholtz's clarinet playing, Mrs. Murphree's clowning, Mr. Allen's hidden talents and last but not least, MacDillard.

"Seniors may now report to the auditorium." A variety of assemblies are enjoyed every school year and an undertow of excitement and curiosity is always sensed throughout the student body on the day of an assembly. During 1979-1980, Philo High School acknowledged Thanksgiving with the choirs, lab band with an encore, energy and the lack of, yearbook, National Honor Society, and Faculty Follies. These student body gatherings are important in school function. They provide a diversion from everyday classes and an opportunity for all of the grades to get together for educational and entertaining events. So! Let's hear it for assemblies!

"What did you learn from this project?" "How did you use the scientific method?" These are a couple of questions asked by the judges at the 1979-1980 Science Day. The Science Department Chairman, Mr. M. S. Dixon said, "I felt that almost every project demonstrated a great gain of knowledge. Most of the projects were weak on the use of the scientific method. The organization was very well done and the students were more cooperative than ever before. I believe that the Philo Science Day was a very beneficial experience for everyone involved."

The Olympics came to Philo December 15, 1979. Despite the chilled weather many observers turned out to see the games. It was almost like the real Olympics with events, winners, and trophies.

"Here we are, ladies and gentlemen, at the annual Science Olympics. Our first event will be the bridge-building contest. Each contestant created his own balsa-wood bridge to withstand the most weight. Ladies and gentlemen, these bridges are tremendous, some are holding over one hundred pounds! . . . After many entries, we have a four-way tie for first place. They are Ed Houk, Mary Kane, Brian Miller, and Van Miller.

For our second event we have the great egg race. Out of three entries Vere Miller was the winner with his egg/record racer.

The winner of the egg drop was Jacala Thomas. Yes, ladies and gentlemen, you heard correctly, the egg drop. Each egg had to be dropped from the top of the flagpole without breaking. The slowest drop was the winner. For our last event, we have the airplane flying contest. Using a sheet paper, each contestant created his own airplane. The winner was Mike Beech with a distance of twenty-seven meters."

Over-all winners from first to tenth place were Mary Kane, Brian Miller, Brad Morgan, Ed Houk, Mike Beech, Brad Hina and Todd Spring tied for sixth, Carmela Godfrey, Vere Miller, Jacala Thomas, and Roy Clapper.

"The Capras" provided the music for the prom playing a variety of fast and slow tunes.

At midnight, the scene changed and became less formal. The after-prom was held at Sunrise Bowling Alley until 4:30. Cy Cathena jammed for the late-night crowd with a variety of songs from different popular groups. Bowling, pool, and food led the interests of the crowd. Near dawn, several breakfasts were held at individual's houses for those who managed to stay awake

"Star Trek" and "Coneheads" of Saturday Night Live were the scene at the National Honor Society's induction assembly. Characters in the skit were Todd Spring, Christy Toole, Cindy Trout, Julie Zink, Brian Dodd, Bob Skidmore, and Adam Pyles. National Honor Society President, Todd Spring, discussed the four qualifications of a member: Scholarship, Leadership, Service, and Character. Afterwards, the parents of the new members joined the group and had refreshment.

Another activity of the National Honor Society was Teacher Appreciation Day. Also, they took an educational field trip.

Let it be known that "Philo is baseball country!" With grueling practice until 5 00 or 5 30 every non-game day, the team strived for perfection. Dedication, teamwork and sweat paid off by carrying the team to MVL District, and sectional titles. The crushing and "hot" regional game with Toronto brought the 1979-1980 season to an end but, not without many tears of joy for the team's great achievements.

Reserve Coach Mike Strohl and Varsity Coach Ron Patterson could be heard yelling from behind third base, "Get the hoover out!" Players watched for the coach to touch the bill of his hat knowing a signal followed directly. Marvin Houk, Rusty Carr, Russ Wagner, Brad Hina and Jim Brownfield were named all-MVL. All-Star players were Marvin Houk, Russ Wagner and Jim Brownfield.

Senior's Last Day

We need a boy up front," shouted Mr. Spaeth as his voice filled the gym. All the seniors were trying to sit where they wanted with as little hassle as possible. Finally after everyone was seated the underclassmen came to the gym and class day began. Anita Frick and Jim Heckel read the wills and the class officers read the class history. Jim Brownfield, Ed Yzen-ski, Troy and Brook Morrison recited the class prophecy. Entertainment was provided by the lab band and senior choir members. Mr. Bell honored Sharon Dietz, class valedictorian and Cindy Trout, class salutatorian, with trophies. Also he recognized vocational awards and scholarships. The day ended as Kim Evans, senior class president, presented the class key and best wishes to Cindy McLaughlin, the 1980-81 senior class president. The seniors then went to the Sam Hatfield Stadium for commencement practice and pictures which were quickly rained out.

With a Different Angle

It didn't rain! For the first time in several years, the sun was shining, it was dry and warm. Almost too warm, most of the class of 1980 was anxious to shed their caps and gowns, and leave, free from school forever!

Baccalaureate services began at 7.30, Thursday, May 29, with the traditional processional "Pomp and Circumstance." Invocation was given by Reverend Frank Love. The varsity choir then sang "Lean on the Wind," and "We Really Never Say Good-Bye." Robin Wilson presented the scripture lesson and Reverend Love gave the class sermon.

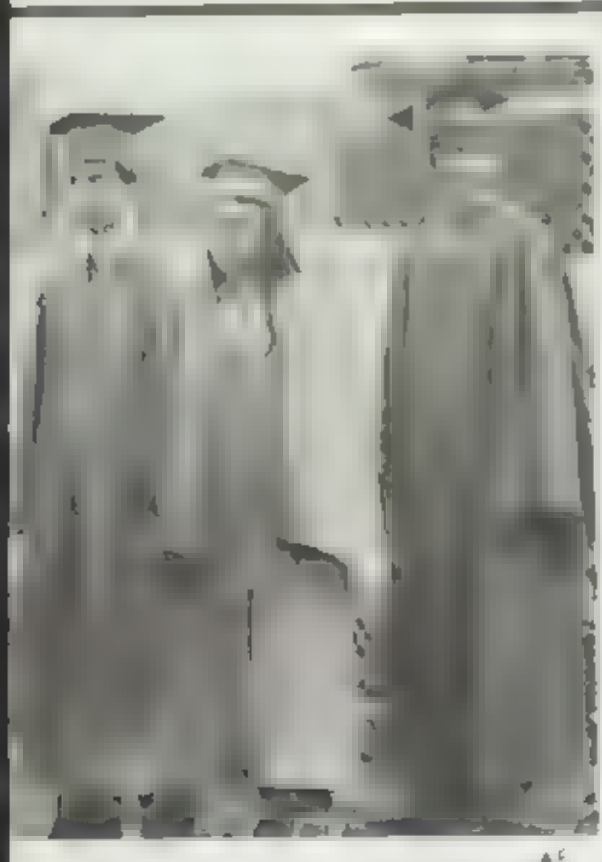

Senior class officers were President Kim Evans, Vice-president Robin Wilson, Treasurer Cindy Trout, and Secretary Brian Miller. The class of 1980's colors were blue and gold, and the class flower was the carnation.

Commencement exercises filled the home stands in the Sam Hatfield Stadium as one hundred and eighty-six students graduated. Commencement began with the "Declaration Overture" performed by the Philo High School Concert Band. Mr. Bel then recognized the honor students which included the five students who maintained a 3.75 or better grade average: Sharon Dietz, Cindy Trout, Loretta Mitchell, Todd Spring, and Mary Kane. Valedictorian, Sharon Dietz, Salutatorian, Cindy Trout, and Class President, Kim Evans, gave their class addresses. Congratulatory remarks were made by superintendent Robert Morgan. Marvin Wilson, president of the board of education, then presented the diplomas. At the same time, Jerry Bates presented the M.A.J.V.S. diplomas. National Honor Society members wore blue and gold honor cords designating their outstanding achievements. Everyone sang the "Ama Mater." Benediction was given by Reverend Love and then the graduates of 1980 marched the "Recessiona."

Faculty

1979-1980 brought about many new happenings here and abroad. One was the Iranian Crisis. These are the responses of the faculty members to the question, "What do you feel is the best solution to the Iranian Crisis?"

MR "BUTCH" SPAETH

The best solution to the Iranian Crisis is a non-violent one. The course that we are taking at present is the best, that of negotiations. Negotiations take a long time and we must not become discouraged with this slow moving process. The worst thing, and in the world's eye, the stupidest would be the use of military force. There are just too many things to be lost by a show of strength."

MR DENNIS BOOHER

"I feel that it is a shame that we have allowed Iran to push us around with the oil situation and the hostages. I don't think much can be done about the hostages at this time. Our best bet is the United Nations

We must be better prepared to protect our representatives in other countries and be prepared to fight for our beliefs. I feel too many people have been pushing us around. Sometimes 'Might is Right'."

MR HEIGGLEY

I don't know-but absolutely don't buy anything from Iran nor don't sell anything."

MRS. JANEEN LICHTNER, "Return the Shah and let him stand trial for his crimes against Iranian people, and also return the fortune he took from the country."

MRS. KAY SHOULARS, "Exactly what we are doing — explore every possible humane diplomatic means of resolving the crisis and cry for reason from the Iranians. We cannot afford a war at this time either economically, militarily, or ethically. While we are suffering humiliation by a group of arrogant radicals, we are at least winning favor with other countries in a world that admires our restraint."

MRS. NANCY HILL, "Patience. Rushing in with weapons and wrath would probably just make matters worse. I'm sorry for the hostages, but I think we can do nothing more than wait. Milton said, 'They also serve who only stand and wait.'"

MRS. LINDA HIGGINS, "This is a very delicate situation which really has no best solution. All sides are going to have to 'give in' in order 'to get'."

MR. THOMAS UPPOLE, "The entire situation is unfortunate. We must stop somehow, being involved in foreign entanglements. Why not follow the warnings of George Washington and others?"

MRS. SHARON ALLEN, "I think that we should see that they are returned immediately. We have been patient and have been diplomatic, and neither has worked. It seems that we have exhausted all reasonable avenues, so what else can we do if they are to be returned except to get them!"

MRS. JAN SPIRO-KIIKKA: "Having lived in Iran for one and a half years, and personally knowing one of the hostages, I have strong feelings about the Iran Crisis. I also feel that other than waiting and praying, we have probably done all we can do. Continued negotiations with the Iranian government (the new Majlis, or Parliament, being elected this week), there is really no clean-cut leader to negotiate with.

Hindsight is great for finding solutions. What we probably should have done months ago was to never invite the deposed Shah to our country. After things went from bad to worse, and the Shah's health failed, we should not have offered him the medical treatment in New York. This may sound cruel, but the Shah's family fortune (under the Pahlavi Foundation) is worth many millions of dollars. The Shah could have provided himself with any necessary treatment in any country of his choice without endangering the several hundred Americans living and working in Iran last year.

At the same time, I want to stress the fact that not all Iranians hate us. Many Iranians are U.S.-educated, and have American friends. I enjoyed my stay in Iran, and I wish that everyone would realize that not all Iranians are radical, revolutionary terrorists!"

MRS. BETTY SHARP: "I feel we should boycott all products coming from Iran, including oil. Refuse to give them foreign aid, in hopes that they will release the hostages."

MR. DAVE CATER: "The hostages were captured in the first place because the Shah was in a U.S. hospital and the Iranians wanted him. Well, he is gone now, but the U.S. citizens are still being held. All relations as well as trade should be broken off. Then if nothing happens, military force of any kind should be taken, whatever is necessary. We can't let other nations take the upper hand militarily or in any other respect."

MR. ALFRED K. BELL: "1. Continue negotiating — use U.N. more effectively. 2. Consider stopping all exports to Iran, including food. 3. Explore blockage of ports.

Danger! If force is used, the hostages could all be killed in a matter of minutes. Then all is lost that we hold dear. The lives of the hostages remain number one."

MR. MYRON CARSON: "Total boycott of all nonfood items, naval blockage of its ports."

MISS CAROLYN SALIBA: "Continued pressure on Iran with the support of other countries. Not military involvement."

MR LARRY SPOON, "I don't want us to go to war anytime or anywhere, but I don't want us to be shoved around and walked on. We should not bully smaller countries, but it is long past time to get tough and let them know that we won't be shoved around."

MR DILLARD HIGGINS, "There is no 'best solution.' The Iran Crisis is an inevitable consequence of the dual standards we use when dealing with emerged nations, third world nations, and small powers. 'The end justifying the means' philosophy is as fallacious as ever."

MR. RICHARD SPURGEON

MRS. PAT MACLAINE, "I feel they are doing everything possible — If we went in after the hostages the terrorists would surely kill them and we want them back alive."

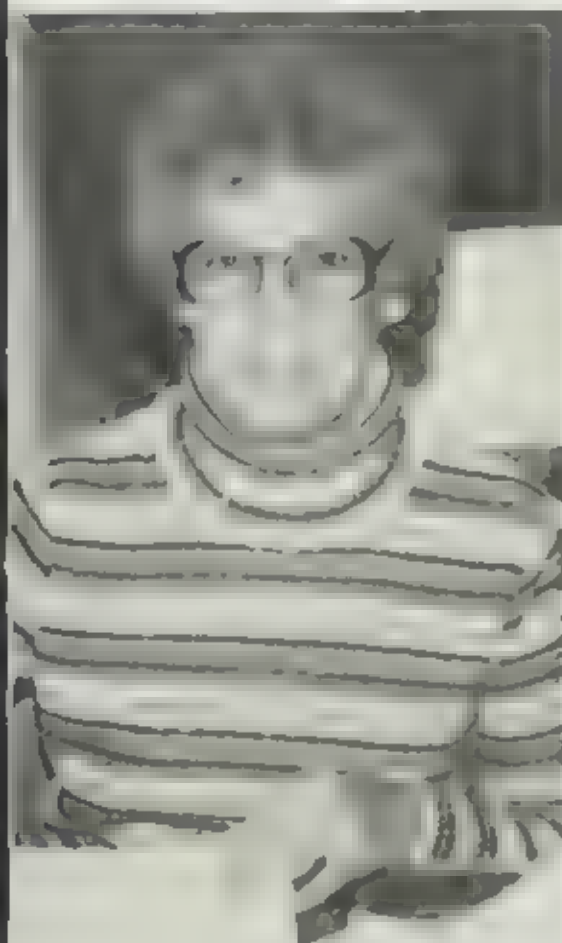

MR. JOHN BUCKHOLTZ

MISS JANICE PETTI: "I have no solution to the Iran Crisis except to use force or demands. I don't think we should give in to the students' demands. Something should have been done a long time ago. The rights of the hostages have to be considered now."

MRS. SYLVIA CORNETT: "Get a settlement and have the hostages returned. They've been held too long."

MRS. LINDA VAN COONEY: "There should be more economic and international pressure on Iran to release these hostages. America has not acted with coordination nor consistency."

MRS. JANE RICHARDSON: "Trial — give the Shah back — one man should not ruin the lives of that many people if it is proven that he has done wrong."

To Whom It May Concern:

As editor, I would like to give a special "Thank You" to the entire Journalism class; the cooperation was overwhelming and it made my job much easier. Also, I would like to thank Mrs. Hill for putting up with me (and Cindy!) at deadlines!

There are several new policies in the 1980 CURRENT such as unique copy, the informal-formal format, and the modular layout design. They are different than before, but each year changes must be made to improve the quality of the book. With a new decade comes "A NEW ANGLE!"

Sincerely yours,

Carmela Godfrey

With a New Angle . . .

the Class of 1980

Robert Beardsley

"Go to $\infty + 1$ world, I'm a Senior!" "Wow! I finally made it!" "I think I am going to miss school and all my friends" and "Do you two think you will ever get married?" are all typical statements made by the seniors at Philo High School.

When a graduate looks back to his years in high school, it always seems that the senior year is the most memorable. Maybe this was because it was the final year in school, or maybe it was because most individuals grew, experienced, learned, and changed a great deal during that year. Many made plans for the rest of their lives, some might prove lifelong.

During the senior year many celebrated their eighteenth birthday, voting rights, first jobs, income tax forms, rock concerts, and the legal drinking age. How could anyone forget Swallows the big hangout for the "older kids" or Frisco Bay with their great dance floor and elegant surroundings.

The class of 1980 brought in a new decade and new traditions as well as carried on many of the old ones. Along came the class of 1980 with — a new angle!

It Ends With

“A New Angle!”

The year of 1980 at Philo produced fantastic funny, hilarious, happy, memorable, rewarding and wonderful as well as sad, forgettable, troublesome, unsettling and unfair times. We saw many changes taking place such as Mount St. Helen's eruption, California's earthquakes, New Orleans's floods, boycotting the olympics, the U.S. Hockey team beating the Russian team, the flood of Cuban refugees, and U.S. hostages in Iran. However, while the world continued to revolve around us, many things at Philo remained the same. The Buzzing Electrics received a "questionable" loss to Maysville, the varsity baseball team is still astonished at the homeplate umpire's blind call at the regional game with Toronto, the local news media forgot to mention our winning the MVL in baseball, the french fries in the cafeteria are still greasy and Mr. Spurgeon still hasn't changed his teaching material. But the students don't complain, not really, because they are changing. Each year the desire is stronger and the pride more obvious. Someday not far into the future, Philo High School will excel so tremendously that we will take the MVL in all sports, band contests, art, choir, and English awards along with many other awards. The reason because each year we view each new and different obstacle and event with A NEW ANGLE!
